Discipling for Development (D4D)

A relational process empowered by God, in which experienced facilitators assist the people of a community to grow in their ability to solve their own problems, to take control of their lives, and to reproduce this process in others. Through this process, the thinking and behavior of the people/community become transformed in ways that result in the growth of the whole person and improvements of various aspects of community life for the glory of God intends them to be.

Discipling for Development

Apprenticing people and communities to become all that God intends for them to be
